Building bridges of learning between the classrooms of the world.

Introducing: OneWorld Classrooms'

K-12 International Art Exchange

This school year, exchange student artwork with K-12 classrooms from around the world, learn about global cultures and decorate the walls of your class or school with international art — by participating in OneWorld Classrooms' K-12 International Art Exchange. Please visit our Web site for more information:

OneWorld Classrooms' K-12 International Art Exchange is:

- ◆ an easy way for your classes to share student-created artwork with their peers from around the world and develop related curriculum-based lessons
- ◆ an authentic source for learning about global cultures
- ◆ aligned with art, language arts, foreign language and social studies curricula

How to participate: You mail your students' artwork to us (US address); we mail you student artwork from up to 12 locations around the world, matching your grade level.

You also get: Specific participation guidelines; lesson and curriculum connection ideas; Email or phone support; PowerPoints and VoiceThreads featuring student art; and Google Earth tours to all participating schools, with digitized artwork, student photos and teacher letters. Starting at $200/exchange, with options to add a Premier International Student Art Display at your school, trace your students' art around the world, interact with an overseas partner (Skype or Email) and tailor an exchange to match the cultural roots of your students (includes our Global Roots Curriculum).

"The program really helped (my students) visualize how it is in other parts of the world and get a broader understanding of the global community." Elementary school teacher, Madrigal, Peru
